WOMAN'S COLLEGE

New Term Begins, Various States and Denominations Being Represented.

With a good outlook for another successful year, the Woman's College opened yesterday. Students representing various religious denominations are coming in from many States, and by the time regular work is begun on Monday it is thought the enrollment will be equal, if not greater, than that of any previous year.

The new year begins with the addition of Miss Helen Baker, a graduate of Richmond College, and graduate student of Columbia University, to the faculty. Miss Baker came to the Woman's College highly recommended from the various places where she studied and worked. The equipment has been further strengthened by the addition of a building which is adjacent to the central building.

It is believed that the entire capacity of the college will be necessary to accommodate the year's full enrollment, which is approximately 200.

CITY BORROWS MONEY

Finance Committee Authorized to Make Temporary Loan of $150,000.

Meeting in special session last night, the Common Council passed, under a suspension of the rules, a resolution allowing the Committee on Finance to make a temporary loan of $150,000 to carry the city until the tax bills due in December become available. It was explained by Councilman W. F. Richardson, for the Finance Committee, that current funds were needed to meet payments coming due on the High School and on the rehabilitation of the Gas Works. Both of these matters are to be paid for by a bond issue when certain bonds are sold. The Council consented to the loan without a dissenting voice. Permission was also given for the transfer of $150,000 from the account of bonds and extra expenses to hands and car's payroll at the request of the Street Committee.

COLLEGE BREAKS FORMER RECORD

Larger Number of Students at Richmond Than Any Year Heretofore.

OPENED NOW FOR WORK

Mayor Richardson Comments Policy Which Has Made It Great Institution.

Formal exercises, marking the beginning of the new session, were held last night in the assembly hall of Richmond College. Mayor David C. Richardson, the principal speaker, was greeted by a large audience, consisting of faculty, students and many friends of the institution. Short addresses were also made by Lieutenant-Governor J. Taylor Ellyson, president of the board of trustees, and others.

Mayor Richardson laid before the student body many matters of grave concern. Being himself an alumnus of the institution, he assured them of his earnest interest in their welfare, emphasizing especially the advantages now offered at Richmond College over those enjoyed there when he was a student.

City Took College In.

Speaking of the growth of the college during a few decades past, he cited the instance of his inspection recently of an old Richmond directory, when he saw a pitiful cut of Richmond College, with these words written underneath: "Richmond College, situated in a pleasant grove, about a mile from the city."

"It is no longer a mile from the city," continued the speaker, "but, on the contrary, Richmond has come to embrace the college, now holding it tenderly to her bosom; meanwhile the college has reached out in every direction and has taken unto careful guardianship the youth far and wide."

The Mayor facetiously excused his lack of oratory on the ground that Professor Metcalf had not established his school of oratory until recently, and surrendered the rostrum to the address of the new professors.

The new members of the faculty were introduced to the audience by Governor Ellyson, each making a short speech relative to plans for his department of work. They are Dr. R. E. Loving, professor of physics; W. P. Dickey, professor of Latin; H. A. Van Landingham, associate professor of English; E. S. Ligon, associate professor of mathematics; J. A. C. Chandler, professor of history and political science.

Mr. W. A. Black, president of the student Young Men's Christian Association, was then introduced, and spoke briefly in welcoming the new men to the hospitalities of the association. He was followed by Mr. E. A. Dunlap, physical director and football coach, and to Mr. Guy Carter Morton, who outlined the general plans and aims of the coming year in the athletic department of the college work.

Largest Enrollment Yet.

The meeting then adjourned to reassemble immediately in the Jeter Memorial Library Hall, where the Young Men's Christian Association gave the new students an informal reception.

President Boatwright said last night that he was greatly pleased with the present outlook for the new year. Already the enrollment has gone beyond former figures, although it is believed that there is a considerable number not yet matriculated. Matriculation will continue through to-day, and little doubt is felt of the final enrollment reaching 500, including the academy students, against 140 last year. Classes will begin this morning at 9 o'clock.

Mayor Richardson to Speak.

Mayor D. C. Richardson will make an address before Post A, of the Travelers' Protective Association, at its rooms at Third and Main Streets on Saturday night at 8:15 o'clock on some subject of general interest. The address will no doubt have to do with the administration of city affairs, along the lines the Mayor has been studying for some weeks past.

HARD LUCK STORY

Austrian, Appending for Aid, Tells of Rough Life in Mines.

Allegheny, Pa., an Austrian, about twenty years of age, applied at the office of the Associated Charities for aid yesterday, saying that he was without money or friends to help him. The man could not speak English, but through one of the representatives of the office who spoke German, his story was interpreted. He said that he had recently come to this country and that directly upon landing had been sent by a New York bureau to Gary, W. Va., where he was to act as interpreter at one of the mines. His pay was to be $2.50 per day. When his first month was up the company refused to pay him that much, informing him that it could not afford to give him more than 90 cents a day. In order to draw any of his pay, he was informed that he must work at the mines for two months. He was not allowed to act as interpreter, but was put to work digging in the mines.

The man stated to the officer yesterday that with the rent he had to pay and the high price of food in the coal-fields he was unable to live on 90 cents a day, so he left. He will be sent to the Austrian consul's office at Baltimore today.

John Hancock.

UPON the Declaration of Independence his name may be read without spectacles. It stands out the strongest, boldest, finest signature. In the most realistic sense John Hancock pledged life and fortune to finance the Revolution in its earlier stages. He held investments in banks, breweries, distilleries, stores, hotels, and owned a fleet of ships engaged in the rum, wine and oil trade. The seizure of one of them (for evading the revenue laws) precipitated the Boston Massacre. He was strong-hearted, full of enterprise, patriotic and bold of spirit. Over many a foaming glass of Boston Ale and hot punch he often declared, "I glory in publicly avowing my eternal enmity to tyranny."
